Gordon Baldwin
Objects for a Landscape

25 May – 14 July 2013

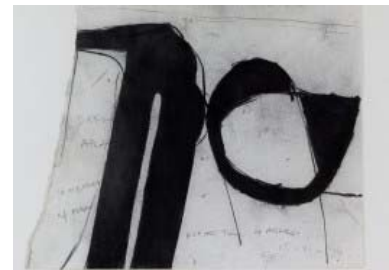

Gordon Baldwin: Objects for a Landscape is an exhibition of work by one of the world's most distinguished ceramic artists, a sculptural potter who has helped to redefine the expressive language of clay over the last fifty years. Baldwin's work is a diary of thought, a physical record of his occupations and obsessions. This exhibition offers a journey through a landscape composed of vessels and sculptural forms, three-dimensional canvases or his ideas.

Gordon Baldwin: Objects for a Landscape is a touring exhibition organised by York Museums Trust. The exhibition is curated by Tatjana Marsden and designed by Martin Smith. A major publication edited by David Whiting has been produced by York Museums Trust to support the exhibition.
